INTRODUCTION

In the volume „Lista faunistică a României” (specii terestre și de apă dulce) [List of Romanian fauna (terrestrial and freshwater species)], editor-in-chief Anna Oana Moldovan from "Emil Racovita" Institute of Speleology, Cluj-Napoca, Milca Petrovici wrote the chapter Order Ephemeroptera (2007, pp.235-236) and mentioned 108 species in the list of Ephemeroptera from our country, indicating the authors of their citation. It is the first time since the publication of a fauna volume (Bogescu, 1958) that such a list has been made public. Here is this list followed by our observations.

MATERIALS AND METHODS

The research was conducted mainly on larvae, during the years 2003-2011. The larvae collection was made traditionally, by net or by hand. For benthic larvae, the hoop net was used. The larvae were subsequently fixed and preserved in alcohol 75%, in glass tubes or jars. To determine the species, dissections were performed under binocular magnifying glass and there were taken into account, in addition to color and conformation of the body, feet and tracheo-bronchia, the elements of the antenna, the mouth parts, legs, the tracheo-gills, on the surface and edge of the sternites. For systematic classification, we used the determination key proposed by I.Tabacaru, 2009.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSIONS

Our observations to this list are:

- No. 6 and No.7. – Baetis buceratus sensu Bogescu was determined by Kimmins as Baetis carpatica Morton, 1910, but Baetis carpatica was made synonymous by I. Müller-Liebenau (1969) with Baetis alpinus Pictet, 1843.
- No. 10. - Eaton did not describe the species Baetis lutheri, her author is Müller-Liebenau, 1967.
- No. 11. – Bogescu did not describe the species Baetis melanonyx. This species was described by Pictet under the name of Cloeo melanonyx. So the author of the Baetis melanonyx is Pictet, 1843-1845.

- No. 12. – Burmeister did not describe the species Baetis muticus. This species was described by Linnaeus under the name of Ephemera mutica, so the author of the species Baetis muticus is Linnaeus, 1758.
- No. 16. and No.18 - I. Müller-Liebenau (1969) made Baetis tenax Eaton,1870 synonymous with Baetis vernus Curtis,1864, so the first name must disappear from the list.
- No. 22. –Cloeon rufulum Müller, 1776 is currently considered synonymous with Cloeon dipterum (Linnaeus, 1761), synonymy established by Sowa (1975), so the name Cloeon rufulum must be taken out of the list.
- No. 30. – At present, the species Ameletus inopinatus is not included in Family Siphlonuridae, but in Family Ameletidae McCafferty, 1991.
- No. 31. – At present, the species Isonichia ignota is not considered as belonging to Family Siphlonuridae but to Family Isonichiidae by Burks, 1953.
- No.49. – The species Behningia lestagei is no longer in our country, being endemic for the Nistru river.
- No. 57. and No. 88. – The same species is listed twice, once as Ecdyonurus aurantiacus and the second time as Rhithrogena aurantiaca. Having the same author and date, Burmeister 1839, both terms refer to what was also described as Baetis aurantiaca by Burmeister, 1839. In the opinion of Soldan & Landa (1958) what Bogoescu determined as Rhithrogena aurantiaca partly belongs to Rhithrogena beskidensis and partly to Rhithrogena savoiensis.
- No. 62. and No. 86. – The same species is listed twice because the species Ecdyonurus fuscogriseus was transferred to Genus Kageronia Matsumura, 1931.
- No. 65. and No. 75. – The same species is listed twice because the species Ecdyonurus lateralis has become the Genus Electrogena Zurerra & Tomka, 1985.
- No. 83. Currently Heptagenia flavipennis Dufour, 1841 is considered synonymous with Heptagenia longicauda (Stephens, 1835); synonymy established by Kimmins in 1942. So the name Heptagenia flavipennis must be excluded from the list.
- No. 100. - The species described by Crasnaru and Bogoescu in 1930 under the name Habroleptoides carpatica was made synonymous with Habroleptoides modesta (Hagen,1864) by Puthz (in Illies, 1978); Sartori and Jacob (1968) state that the criteria used by the authors to diagnose the species H. carpatica seem to enter the intraspecific variability of the species called Habroleptoides confusa Sartori & Jacob, 1968.
- No. 101. - Sartori & Jacob (1968) showed that the species Habroleptoides modesta (Hagen, 1864) was described in Corsica and seems to be endemic to this island. The mainland species for which Schoenemund and other authors (including Bogoescu) uses this name is actually a species called H. confusa. So Habroleptoides modesta (Hagen, 1864) must be eliminated from the list and replaced by Habroleptoides confusa Sartori & Jacob, 1986.
- No.4. Acentrella inexpectata, No. 33. Siphlonurus alternatus, No. 39. Caenis luctuosa, No.42. Caenis rivulorum, No. 47. Serratella mesoleuca, No.59. Ecdyonurus carpaticus, No. 60. Ecdyonurus dispar, No.70. Ecdyonurus submontanus, No. 76. Electrogena quadrilineata, No.80. Epeorus torrentium, No. 84. Heptagenia longicauda, No. 91. Rhithrogena hybrida, No. 92. Rhithrogena iridida, No. 96. Rhithrogena sowai and No. 106. Paraleptophlebia cincta, are species mentioned by Petrovici apud Găldean 1989, in his unpublished PhD thesis. These species have been first published in this list but without the locality where they were found.
- No.66. Ecdyonurus macani, No.67. Ecdyonurus picteti, No. 68. Ecdyonurus starmachi, No. 73. Ecdyonurus zelleri, No. 74. Electrogena affinis, No.77. Electrogena ujhelyii No.89. Rhithrogena carpatoalpina, No.93. Rhithrogena nivata species are mentioned by Milca Petrovici, apud her unpublished PhD thesis. These species appear published in this list for the first time without the locality where they were found.

Given the current results in Ephemeroptera systematics and the numerous reviews and synonymies that were established, we propose below a new conspect of this order of insects in our country.

CONCLUSIONS

In terms of its systematic study, Order Ephemeroptera represents one of the most difficult insect orders.

In our country, the most serious problems of systematics are raised by families Baetidae and Heptageniidae due to the fact that they are the richest in species, as well as because they have suffered from the most numerous changes in nomenclature and from repeated synonymies.

ABSTRACT

Our research, conducted between 2003-2011 on the Order Ephemeroptera from Romania discovered some inconsistencies in the systematic classification of this order. As a result, considering the current data in Ephemeroptera systematics and the numerous reviews and synonymies that have been established, we propose a new species concept on this insect order of our country.
